

Reds Claim UN Council Has No Authority To Probe Blockade

Paris, Oct. 4 (AP)—Russia told the United Nations Security Council today it has no right to consider western charges that the Soviet blockade of Berlin is a menace to world peace.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky left off his fight to keep the Berlin issue out of the council's hands. He declared the western demand for U. N. consideration of the dispute was "devoid of any ground, as it does not fall within the scope of the Security Council."

The issue, he said, should be sent to the Big Four Council of Foreign Ministers, as a formal note from Moscow proposed earlier today.

Vishinsky declared the U. N. Charter forbids the Council to discuss anything concerning Germany until the four occupying powers have written a peace treaty for the beaten country.

Taking the argument to the foreign ministers' council, he said, offers the only legal way to settle the problems of Germany, including Berlin which has been under a Soviet land blockade since last June 23.

Raps Currency Reform
He said the Berlin problem is closely linked to the whole German problem. He charged that the currency reform in western Germany last June was an "act of aggression" (Please Turn To Page 2)

$700 DONATED TO CHURCH FUND ON RALLY DAY

Rally Day at Trinity Evangelical and Reformed church school opened with a song service at 9:15 o'clock Sunday morning. Devotional services were conducted by Mrs. Guyon E. Buehler and Clyde R. Spangler. The Primary department, under the direction of Mrs. C. Robert Dearhoff, superintendent, sang several songs and the class of 11 boys and girls which graduated last Sunday from the Primary department to the Junior department in the main room, was introduced to the school.

Mrs. Buehler, retiring superintendent, expressed the appreciation of the school to the following who, at their request, have been replaced on the church school staff but will continue in other duties: Charles Kuhns, assistant superintendent for two years; Mrs. Robert P. Snyder, general secretary for six years and secretary to the Board for one year; Mrs. Jesse L. Clapsaddle, Sunshine chairman and librarian, six years; E. J. Yoder, Missionary superintendent, two years; Mrs. C. T. Tipton, Home and Extension superintendent for four years, and a visitor in that department for two years; Miss Alice M. Snyder, Stewardship superintendent, four years; Mrs. Charles Kuhns, Temperance superintendent, one year, and has now been appointed Temperance superintendent for the First District, Adams County Council of Christian Education.

Laud Other Workers
Tribute was also paid to other workers: George T. Raffensperger, who has been teaching in the school for 25 years; Miss Myrtle Sheely for about 30 years; Miss Frances Gilbert for 14 years; John D. Eckert, Adult superintendent, who has had perfect attendance for 18 years; and to the staff of officers, teachers and assistants who have made it possible for the school to maintain a high standing. The average attendance record of the school is approximately 75 per cent.

On behalf of the school, Clyde Spangler, the new superintendent, presented Mrs. Buehler, the retiring superintendent, with a $25 U. S. Savings Bond, in appreciation of her work as general superintendent for the past six years.

The annual offering for the building fund was received. It totaled over $700, which with outstanding pledges and amounts to be paid by various groups, will bring the

Train Fund Is Short $1,475

The Freedom Train fund is $1,475.90 short of its goal of $4,280. Henry W. Garvin, treasurer, reported donations of $85 over the week-end which increased the total subscribed thus far to $2,804.10.

"Most of the industries, fraternal and civic organizations have not been heard from and a number of merchants who pledged donations have not sent in their checks," Mr. Garvin said. Today's donors are:

$25: Littlestown Hardware and Foundry.

$23: Gettysburg high school teachers.

$12: Dr. and Mrs. Raymond F. Sheely.

$10: Thrift Plan of Gettysburg and Haines Shoe store.

$5: Thompson's ladies store.

DR. WENTZ SAYS AMSTERDAM'S EVENTS WILL SHAPE HISTORY

The birth of the World Council of Churches last month at Amsterdam was labeled by Dr. A. R. Wentz, one of the four U. S. delegates to the council meetings, as "the most important event in modern history and the most significant event in Christian history since the 16th century Reformation."

The Gettysburg Lutheran seminary president made those statements as he opened the season for the Methodist-Presbyterian Sunday Evening Hour series with an address in the Methodist church. "Amsterdam—1948" was his topic.

"Amsterdam proved that the differences among the denominations are not nearly so important as the things we have in common," he reported. "We recognized among these differences great spiritual values that when shared made all richer and none poorer. Amsterdam pointed the way to unity through admitted subtraction."

Fashioned Church Of Future
"Amsterdam proved laymen, men and women, young and old of different denominations can worship together, witness and work together. Amsterdam compels Christian churches to face up realistically to international issues, insisting that Christians need not identify themselves with any political system but judge each system by Christ's standards which are far and above any man-made system."

"Finally, Amsterdam fashioned an organization in which all Christians of the world may stand, study, speak and serve together. The structure for the church of the future was fashioned there."

Doctor Wentz spoke first of the background of the formation of the World Council of Churches and traced the movement for church

8 ARE NABBED IN 90 MINUTES SATURDAY NIGHT

Borough police made eight arrests within 90 minutes Saturday night and early Sunday morning and turned up, as the result of one of the arrests, a man they had been seeking since September 7 on a robbery with assault and force charge.

The man, Earl Junior Richardson, 22, Carlisle street extended, was arrested together with George E. Duncan, 135 North Stratton street, on disorderly charges at 12:45 o'clock Sunday morning as a result of fighting on Chambersburg street.

Both were taken to jail where Richardson remained today under $2,000 bail on the robbery charge, which was laid before Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder. Police said that Richardson and an accomplice early in the morning of September 7, seized Charles Smith, York street extended, and took from him a pocketbook containing approximately $234. According to police, Smith was walking east on York street toward his home when Richardson and his accomplice grabbed him and pushed him into Fourth street, where they took the pocketbook from him.

Police said Richardson and his partner then left Gettysburg, going first to Baltimore and then to St. Joseph, Missouri. Later they returned to Gettysburg. Police are seeking Richardson's partner.

Many Arrested
During the 90 minutes from 11:15 o'clock Saturday night to 12:45 o'clock Sunday morning the borough police had one of the "busiest" periods in some time.

At 11:15 o'clock Saturday night Joseph Wilkinson, Orrtanna R. 1, was taken to jail on a drunk and disorderly charge laid by the borough

CHEST WORKERS MEET TONIGHT

The "kick-off" for the first annual Community Chest drive in Gettysburg will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock at the court house.

Upwards of 200 solicitors, who will make the door-to-door and office-to-office campaign for funds, starting Friday, will be present for tonight's meeting at which they will be given supplies, lists of persons whom they are to see, and information concerning the Community Chest.

Under the newly organized Community Chest plan the campaign for funds which would have been held separately by six local organizations will be held instead as one "Community Chest" drive. A total of $19,000 is being sought during the solicitation which will extend through October 18.

100 OF COUNTY INSTALL LODGE OFFICERS HERE

Approximately one hundred twenty-five members and friends of the order witnessed the installation of officers of the various Odd Fellows' lodges of the county into their respective offices at a class installation in the rooms of Gettysburg Lodge No. 124, Saturday evening.

The ceremony was conducted by an installing staff composed entirely of past grand masters of the jurisdiction of Pennsylvania, with Samuel Kolter, superintendent of the orphans' home, Philadelphia, organizer of the staff, acting as grand master. Included on the team, beside Mr. Kolter, were Frank Shannon, Archibald A. Grant, Harry Stephens, Ben L. Jenkins, Charles Schwenk, the Rev. W. E. Preston Haas and the present grand master, William O. Jones.

After being called to order the team took over, Mr. Kolter stated the purpose of the meeting, and after ascertaining that all elective and appointive officers were qualified to serve, proceeded with the installation.

Much Of Nation Is Hit By Frost

The mercury dipped to a new low for the season of 38 degrees here during Sunday night and brought reports of the first fall frost. Sunday's high temperature was only 61 degrees. The previous low this fall was 40 degrees reached on two late September mornings.

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP)—Frost bit at a large share of the nation today. Cadillac, Mich., reported 25, the lowest early morning temperature. It was 27 at Land O'Lake, Wis., 28 at Albany, N. Y., 29 at Brookville, Pa., and 30 at Erie. The cool air extended up through the New England states also.

By contrast, Miami reported 78 and New Orleans 67. It was raining over the Great Plains, and rain fell along the Pacific coast from San Francisco bay north, and in eastern Georgia and the Carolinas.

U. S. forecasters said they couldn't see much to change the situation within the next two days.

Weather Forecast

Partly cloudy tonight. Continued cool with frost in the extreme north portion. Tuesday increasing cloudiness and continued cool.

Death Claims Penrose Myers, Norton C. Miller And Mrs. L. Winifred Miller Within 20 Hours

Penrose Myers, 90, who recently retired after conducting a jewelry business here for 72 years, died at his home on Oak Ridge Sunday evening at 9 o'clock from coronary occlusion.

Mr. Myers had been in his usual health Sunday and had eaten a hearty dinner at 2:30 p. m. after which he walked to his novelty stand on Oak Ridge about 4 o'clock, returning home at 5:30. He later entertained some visitors. He was stricken while sitting in a chair and died 10 minutes later. Dr. C. G. Crist, county coroner, was called.

Oldest Active Merchant

Until his retirement from business here last summer, Mr. Myers was the oldest active merchant in town and held the distinction of having been in business in Gettysburg longer than any other merchant. He conducted a jewelry and souvenir business in the same location on Baltimore street for 72 years.

A native of Dover, Pa., Mr. Myers was a son of the late William and Hannah (Butt) Myers. He resided in Adams county during the battle of Gettysburg. His wife, the former Jennie Tate, died November 12, 1917.

Mr. Myers was a member of the Good Samaritan Masonic Lodge 336; Good Samaritan Royal Arch Chapter 266; Gettysburg Commandery 79; Zembo Shrine of Harrisburg; Gettysburg Elks and Gettysburg Moose.

Funeral Wednesday

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Mary M. Davis and Mrs. Mabel T. Schelling, both at home.

Funeral services Wednesday at 3:30 p. m. from the Bender funeral home conducted by the Rev. Dr. Howard Schley Fox. Interment in Evergreen cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Tuesday evening.

REPORTS CAR DAMAGE

Freeman Kennedy, York Springs, reported to borough police at 10 o'clock Saturday night that a front fender had been knocked off his car while it was parked near the Adams Novelty plant. He told police he believed some other car, also parked near the plant, had backed into the front of his vehicle, damaging the fender. Police are conducting an investigation.

TWO MOTORISTS FINED

Kenneth Eugene Myers, York, paid a fine of $10 and costs before Justice of the Peace W. D. Brown, Straban township, on a charge of speeding today. Paul J. Parnell, Hazleton, paid a fine of $10 and costs before Justice Robert Bell, Straban township, on a charge of driving without an operator's license following an accident, state police also reported.

Girl Scouts Build Good Citizens For Future; To Get Share From "Chest"

Assisting Gettysburg girls to become Gettysburg's good citizens of tomorrow is the local program of the Adams County Girl Scout organization.

To aid the Girl Scout association in its work the Community Chest has allocated to the scouts $2,700 from the drive for $19,000 which will begin October 8. The Girl Scouts are one of six organizations whose drives for funds are being carried out this year as one drive through the Community Chest.

That job of training today's girls to be tomorrow's active adult citizens is a never-ending one on the part of the Girl Scouts, and the Girl Scouts become good junior citizens with the idea being that the habits learned in youth will carry over into the adult stage.

From the time the girls enter the Brownies at the age of 7, until they enter the Senior Scout movement that extends through 18 they are at work on projects designed to teach good citizenship by being good citizens.

An example of their work is the

Mrs. L. Winifred Miller, wife of Dr. Edgar A. Miller, 256 Baltimore street, died at the Warner hospital Sunday morning at 5:30 o'clock from a complication of diseases following a lingering illness of about a year. She was admitted to the hospital Friday in a serious condition.

Mrs. Miller was born in York county, a daughter of the late Rudolph B. and Rosa (Hamm) Gladfelter. She spent the greater part of her life in East Berlin and Gettysburg. The deceased was a member of Zwingli Evangelical Reformed church, East Berlin; the Home Department of St. James Lutheran church; Gettysburg Woman's club, and American Legion Auxiliary.

Funeral Wednesday

Surviving are her husband to whom she was married in 1913; three children, Mrs. Herbert N. Schroeder, Doyleville, N. Y., Dr. Edgar A. Miller, Jr., Gettysburg, and Mrs. John E. Berger, at home; two grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. P. W. Kimmel, East Berlin, and a number of nephews and nieces.

Littlestown TO OPEN FOURTH UNION VESPERS SERIES SUNDAY

For the fourth consecutive year, Union Vesper services will be conducted by the churches of Littlestown during the fall and winter months. The first of these services was conducted in October, 1945, and continued each Sunday night until December, when there was a recess until after the January Communion services. The second series of the first year was conducted from January until the Sunday before Palm Sunday. During the first year, all of the preaching was done by guest ministers. During the fall months, the services are held in the town churches as well as St. John's Lutheran and Christ Reformed Churches. During the winter months most of the services are held in the ministerium assists in securing the guest speakers. Because of the success of the first year of union vesper services, these services were continued in 1946 and 1947.

At a recent meeting of the ministerium plans were formulated for conducting the first series of the fourth year of these services, the first of which will be held next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock in St. Paul's Lutheran church. They will continue each Sunday evening at the same hour until December 12. The guest speaker for the first service has been secured by the Rev. Frank E. Reynolds, pastor of Redeemer's Reformed church. He will be Chaplain (Lieutenant Colonel) Arthur Carl Piep

PAST GRANDS TO MEET

The October meeting of the Past Grands' association of Adams county Odd Fellows will be held Tuesday evening in Gettysburg after the weekly meeting of the Gettys Lodge. Rebekahs also are invited to attend.

Norton C. Miller, 72, of 116 York street, well known retired mail carrier, died at the Warner hospital Sunday evening at 11:25 o'clock from the effects of two strokes. He was admitted to the hospital following the first stroke on September 24. Last Friday he suffered a second stroke.

NORTON C. MILLER

Mr. Miller was a native of Adams county, a son of the late Charles G. and Harriet (Beamer) Miller. With the exception of 12 years spent near Union Bridge, Md., when a young boy, he resided all of his life in the county.

He attended county schools and Gettysburg academy. In the middle of his sophomore year at Gettysburg college in 1901 he left school to take a Civil Service examination after which he entered the postal service here. Mr. Miller retired as a mail carrier in 1942.

Funeral Thursday

The deceased was a member of Salem United Brethren church; Sons of Union Veterans and Odd Fellows. He was the organizer of the Majestic club and served as its president during its existence. Mr. Miller was an ardent sports follower and seldom missed a college or high school athletic contest.

During his career as a mailman in the northern part of the town it was his daily custom to carry candy and other sweets which the children always anticipated.

Surviving are a sister, Miss Carrie E. Miller, at home, and one brother, F. O. Miller, Pennsgrove, N. J. Two nieces and two nephews also survive.

Funeral services Thursday at 2 p. m. from the Bender funeral home conducted by the Rev. Harold V. March. Interment in the Salem United Brethren cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Wednesday evening.

Teachers Give To Train Fund

Gettysburg high school teachers today donated $23 to the Gettysburg and Adams County Freedom Train fund. The donation was voluntary. They had not been solicited by the Train committee to help finance the Week's Rededication program and two-day exposition of the Freedom Train here November 19 and 20.

The donation was turned over to Henry W. Garvin, treasurer, by Professor Guile W. Lefever, principal of the Gettysburg high school, "as a contribution from the high school teachers towards this very worthy cause."

EX-ALCOHOLICS TELL STORY OF THEIR REFORM

"Alcoholism is a disease, like diabetes, or cancer, or tuberculosis."

"Alcoholics, Anonymous will help an alcoholic only if he himself is willing to be helped."

"In Alcoholics Anonymous, we admit that we are alcoholics, and for this reason can understand each other's problems, and help each other."

"It is not a disgrace to be a diabetic, or to have cancer, and so it is not a disgrace to be an alcoholic, but after finding Alcoholics Anonymous, with a membership of 75,000, the disgrace would be to find sobriety, and then slip back to the old way of life."

"When you come to Alcoholics Anonymous, you must be honest with yourself, honest with God and honest with the Alcoholics Anonymous way of life."

GHS EXERCISE IS FEATURED

Gettysburg high school's commencement, which was highlighted by an address by Dr. David E. Lillenthal, chairman of the United States Atomic Energy commission, was featured in the October issue of Student Life, published by the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

A two-page spread, with an article written by Doris Rothaupt, editor-in-chief, and Jeanne Waltemyer, feature editor, of the Maroon and White, Gettysburg high school publication, displayed six pictures of various phases of the activities.

Galen Keeney, former president of the student body, is shown presenting Dr. Lillenthal to the radio audience in one picture while Ruth Jeanne Diehl thanks Dr. Lillenthal for his talk to the high school graduates of America in another.

Dr. Lillenthal is featured in three pictures: addressing the high school graduates; with Dr. Paul E. Ellicker, editor of Student Life; and seated between Prof. Guile Lefever, principal, and Dr. L. C. Keefeauver, superintendent, Gettysburg high school. One other scene shows members of the graduating class receiving their diplomas.

A full page spread with photographs on the same commencement was recently featured in the National Education Association magazine which all high school teachers in public schools receive.

LINKE-ANTHONY CEREMONY HELD

Miss Marie Jeanette Anthony, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Anthony, Littlestown, R. 2, and Alfred Clarence Linke, son of Mrs. Louise Linke and the late Emil Linke, Baltimore, were united in marriage on Saturday morning at a nuptial mass at 9 o'clock in St. Aloysius Catholic church, Littlestown. The pastor, the Rev. George A. Lavelle, performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Anthony, as maid of honor. The bridegroom had as his best man, William H. Anthony, Jr., brother of the bride. Serving as ushers were Earl Noel and Robert Riley.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin gown with an off the shoulder

600 MEMBERS ENROLLED IN CONCERT GROUP

Gettysburg's Concert Association closed its 1948 membership campaign Saturday night at 8 o'clock with approximately 600 members, Mrs. Robert Derck, chairman of the drive, announced today.

"There are a few reports outstanding and it is likely that the membership will be increased when we have received all our reports and completed our final checkup."

"In some communities there was a slight decrease in members compared with last year while in others we noted a slight increase. Our percentage of new members exceeds the decrease in renewals and this, we feel, is encouraging," Mrs. Derck said.

The officers and directors of the Association selected the three artists for concerts here this winter but were unable to receive confirmation because of a conflict in dates, previously scheduled out of the New York office.

WOMAN CHURCH WORKER SPEAKS HERE THURSDAY

Miss Margaret T. Applegarth, of the staff of the American Committee for the World Council of Churches, will speak on "Christian Unity and Ecumenical Education" Thursday afternoon at the fourth biennial session of the Mercersburg Synodical Women's Guild. The guild will hold its meeting in Trinity Evangelical and Reformed church here.

Miss Applegarth, who for nine years was national chairman of the World Day of Prayer, has just returned from Amsterdam where she attended the assembly of the World Council and for 10 months prior to that she traveled throughout the United States to speak at colleges, churches, clubs and conferences as a traveling speaker for the American committee for the World Council of churches. She is also well known as a writer, having written many books on missionary and world friendship themes.

The principal speaker for the annual Fellowship dinner held in connection with the session here will be Mrs. H. L. V. Shinn, of Toledo Ohio, the guild announced. The dinner session will be held at St. James Lutheran church. Mrs. Shinn is a former national chairman of Stewardship for the Women's Guild of the Evangelical and Reformed church. Wife of a Reformed minister, she, with her husband, has written several pamphlets on stewardship that have been widely used throughout the Evangelical and Reformed church. Mrs. Shinn serves in several boards and agencies of the Evangelical and Reformed church and has been on the faculty of the Summer Women's Guild Conference at Hood, Cedar and Heidelberg colleges.

An organ prelude by Miss Kathryn O'Boyle, organist for Emmanuel church, Hanover, will open the session Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. Mrs. Frank Rosenberger, Waynesboro, will have charge of the worship service and Mrs. Howard S. Fox, South Stratton street, will bring greetings. Reports will be given by Mrs. Jacob Weaver, York, secretary; Mrs. Roy W. Limbert, Dover, president; Mrs. W. J. Lemaster, York, treasurer; Miss Helen Barnhart, York, auditor; Mrs. Wiley Gemmill, Heidelberg, head of the nominating committee will report prior to the election of officers for which Mrs. I. A. Raubenach, York, will be in charge.

Mrs. O. K. Maurer, Red Lion, will present literature; Mrs. Nevin Prantz, Ardreville, will make the report for the tellers. The closing prayer will be given by the Rev. Howard S. Fox, pastor of Trinity Evangelical and Reformed church. (Please Turn To Page 8)

Tuesday Markets Are Discontinued

The Tuesday morning Farmers' Market at the market house in the rear of York street has been discontinued until next spring, farmers announced today. There will be no market tomorrow morning.

CHURCH FILLED FOR MUSICAL

An audience which taxed the capacity of Trinity-Benders Reformed church, Biglerville, the Rev. N. R. Prantz, pastor, on Sunday enjoyed an evening of varied musical selections by guest soloists and the Littlestown Men's chorus directed by Robert Snyder. The musicale was sponsored by the choir of Trinity-Benders church and was the first of a series of musicales to be sponsored by the choir. Guest soloists on the program were: Mr. and Mrs. Dale Roth, York Springs; Marvin Kime, Bendersville; Mrs. Charles Yost and Miss Julia Yost, Biglerville, in addition to the chorus from Littlestown.

The committee on arrangements consisted of Mrs. John Lawver, Mrs. Roy Lawver, Mrs. Robert Strine, Earl Fohl and Elmer Hoke. The soloists were Donald Grim, Donald Roads, Harold Cleveland, Clyde Cleveland, Larry Lawver and Donald Lawver.

The musicale was a continuation of the services of rededication of the church. New lighting fixtures in the sanctuary were dedicated at the morning service. They were placed in memory of the following: William H. and Harriet Gardner Deatrick, by their children; Singleton J. and Mary Elizabeth Myers by their children; in memory and honor of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Ecker by their son, Earl; in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin O. Deardorff by their children; and the Friendship class of the Church school taught by Miss Clara Myers. The Church school taught by Elmer Hoke provided the outside light at the main entrance.

Announcement was also made that the Communion cup receptacles placed on the backs of the pews were the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Hanson Heckenluber, Arendtsville.

A total expenditure of $1,867.96 was involved in preparation for and redecoration of the church.

DEATH CLAIMS NOTED BOTANIST

Dr. J. Horace McFarland, 89, internationally famed botanist, whose father was wounded while leading Union troops here during the Battle of Gettysburg, died Saturday in a Harrisburg hospital.

Doctor McFarland is credited with having accomplished the setting up of the National Park system through a ten-year struggle for legislation to effect the National Park set-up. He led the American Civic Association in the fight for the park system.

For his horticultural work he received the Arthur Hoyt Scott Garden and Horticulture award in 1939 and the Dean Hole memorial medal in 1942. The latter is the highest award of recognition of the national rose society of England.

Doctor McFarland's father, Col. George F. McFarland, was wounded while in command of a regiment near what is now Reynolds avenue, and his leg was amputated at one of the seminary buildings, then used as a hospital. Colonel McFarland's wife and son, Horace, visited Gettysburg, arriving here on the first engine entering Gettysburg after the battle.

Bullets Rout Albright 26-6 To Cop Second Straight Win; Passing Attack Is Effective

Packing most of its offensive punch into the first two periods, the Gettysburg college football team won its second straight victory of the season and its opening home game by upsetting Albright 26-6 here Saturday afternoon before a crowd of approximately 2,500 fans.

A coffin-corner kick by Bill Atherholt's bullet punting act, early in the first period which went out of bounds on the one foot mark, led to the Bullets' first tally.

The Lions picked up five yards on the next play when Gettysburg was detected off sides but on the next play Al Reese, guard, recovered a fumble on the Albright 4.

Ditty Jones failed to gain on a plunge and Bud Musselman picked up a yard at right tackle. A pass, Sachs to Dwight Speaker, failed. Musselman then went around right end to hit pay dirt. Atherholt's placement for the point was blocked.

The Bullets marched 58 yards for their next touchdown thanks to the aerial tossing of Sachs. As the first period ended Sachs tossed to Bob McCausland on the Albright 19. Another heave to Bud Cauffman was good for a first down on the Lions' 28. Junior Griffiths swept right end for the tally. Atherholt added the point on a placement.

Midway in the second quarter Jack Love recovered an Albright fumble on the visitors' 23 but the Bullets were stopped when Delowski recovered a Gettysburg fumble on the 14. Harnly punted out to Speaker who returned to the Lions' 46 from where the Bullets again took to the air lanes for a score.

Sachs shot a quick throw to McCausland for a first down on the 26. He then flipped a short toss to Speaker who, aided by some effective blocking, reached the 1-yard line from where Musselman went around left end for the tally. Atherholt's placement for the point was wide.

Late in the second period Albright made a bid to score when a double pass, Harnly to Serfass to Bowman, was allowed due to interference on the Gettysburg 18. However, the Bream-men held firm and after batting down three passes took the ball on the 14.

Hummel Recovered Gene Hummel recovered a fumble on Albright's 42 early in the third period and the Bullets were on their way to their final score. Griffiths picked up nine yards at right end and a coach then passed to Cauffman for a first down on the 23. Three plays later Jones went through left tackle for a first down on the nine. Albright received a five-yard off side penalty and then Griffiths skirted left end for the score. Atherholt's boot for the point was good.

Albright came back for its only score of the game thanks to the running of Krohto. After a pass, Kroto to Badorf, was good for a first down on the Albright 47. Kroto raced through left tackle for a first down on the Gettysburg 36. Two plays later he made another first down on the 26 and after Maracani failed to gain on a line plunge, Kroto broke through the line and galloped 25 yards for the touchdown. Maracani's placement was wide.

Gettysburg missed a scoring opportunity in the final period when Griffiths intercepted an enemy pass and returned to his 41. Musselman, Jones, Cervino, Faulkner, and a pass, Sachs to Jones, helped move the ball for a first down on the 7 but Albright braced and took the ball when on the last down Sachs heaved to Cervino on the two.

Team Impressive The work of the entire Gettysburg team was impressive. There is little doubt the Bullets have a much more potent attack than they have had for several years. The blocking and tackling was sharp throughout and the squad appears to have more speed.

Next Saturday the Bream-men engage one of their toughest foes of the season, Bucknell, who will be met at Lewisburg.

Ted Lyons Quits Chicago White Sox

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP)—Ted Lyons has quit the last-place Chicago White Sox.

His resignation as manager ends a 25-year active career with the club, one of the longest in major league history.

Charles Comiskey, 22-year-old heir of the baseball dynasty, last night announced the appointment of Jack Onslow as Lyons' successor. The 59-year-old Onslow moves up from the Sox Memphis farm club after guiding the Chicago Cubs to second place in the southern association this season.

LITTLESTOWN 9 WINS 1ST TILT

Playing before what is believed to be the largest crowd that ever witnessed a baseball game in Littlestown, the Littlestown nine defeated Taneytown 7-4 Sunday afternoon in the first of a three-game series for the championship of the Penn-Maryland league.

Littlestown tabbed two runs in the first inning and was never headed.

Kress and Mehrling hit homeruns for the winners while Unger homered for Taneytown.

The second game of the series will be played at Taneytown next Sunday afternoon.

Yesterdays Stars

(By The Associated Press) Pitching—Hal Newhouse, Tigers—Stopped Cleveland's bid for its first American league pennant since 1920 by pitching Detroit to a 7-1 five hit win over Indians, his 21st win of the season.

Batting—Dom DiMaggio, Red Sox—Ignited five and four run rallies with single and homer, respectively, to spark Boston to a 10-5 win over New York and enable Red Sox to tie Cleveland for league lead.

THUNDERBOLTS WIN 1ST GAME BY 7-0 SCORE

A touchdown by F. Gerrick early in the fourth period gave Littlestown high school's football team a 7-0 victory over New Freedom in a Little Four Conference game Saturday at New Freedom.

Clay Evans' outfit was hampered by the absence of four regulars. New Freedom threatened to score twice but pass interceptions by Peeser and Gerrick, the former's coming in the second period and the latter's in the third, halted the drives.

Littlestown registered 10 first downs to six for the losers. The Thunderbolts completed six of 14 aerials while New Freedom made good six of 17.

Next Saturday Littlestown will be host to Dallastown.

SUPREME COURT OPENS SESSION

Washington, Oct. 4 (AP)—The Supreme court today opens a new term expected to produce historic decisions on powers of the house un-American activities committee and on important labor law issues.

A full-blown test case of the committee's authority to compel witnesses to testify as to possible Communist affiliations is expected to reach the nine justices during the nine-month term.

Various witnesses called before the house group have refused to answer the question, "are you now or have you ever been a member of the Communist party?"

For a long time the witnesses cited only the first amendment to the constitution as justifying their refusals. They contended that questions concerning political activities are a threat to the rights of free assembly and association.

More recently some of those summoned in connection with the committee's espionage inquiry have cited the fifth amendment which permits a witness to decline to give testimony that might tend to incriminate or degrade him.

There have been contempt of Congress convictions involving the first amendment stand. And committee members have announced they will press similar charges against those who have stood on the fifth amendment.

15,000 SEEK 8,500 SEATS
 Boston, Oct. 4 (AP)—A cold and hungry crowd of 15,000 stormed Fenway park today to get 8,500 bleacher seats to the Red Sox-Indians pennant-playoff game.

More than 2,000 fans spent the night camped outside the park waiting for the box-office to open at 9 a.m. EST. The temperature was only eight degrees above freezing during the night—but the cold didn't discourage many, if any.

Several persons fainted either from hunger or exhaustion and several fist-fights developed over places in line.

"You can't arrest anyone for fighting for a ticket for this game," commented one cop. "If I wasn't on duty I'd be in line myself."

It was a strange sight—camp fires blazing on a busy street in the heart of staid old Boston. Some of Boston's most respected citizenry sleeping on the sidewalk covered only with newspapers. Others on army cots. In sleeping bags. Jugs of coffee (and other jugs, too) were passed around to keep the fans warm.

AMISH FARMERS RETURN TO JAIL

Somerset, Pa., Oct. 4 (AP)—Four Amish farmers, unshaken in their belief that high school is a waste of time, were back in the county jail today for indefinite sentences.

The four men, jailed for defying Pennsylvania's school code in refusing to send their children to high school, were released yesterday long enough to attend World Community church services. A deputy sheriff escorted them to their home community of Elk Lick for the religious services and then returned them to their cells.

Originally the Amishmen were handed 12-day sentences by Justice of the Peace C. A. Maust who warned an additional day would be added for each day the children remained at home.

The children, all over 15, have not returned to school and the ever-lengthening jail terms now total 19 days.

The farmers, Jonas Petersheim, Amos J. Yoder, Menno Brenneman and Enos Mast, contend that higher education is of no use in farming, principal occupation of the strict Pennsylvania Dutch sect. They have hired a lawyer to fight the case.

PENN STATE AND PENN EXTEND WIN STREAKS

(By The Associated Press) The top two football powers in the Keystone state—Penn State and Pennsylvania—headed into rougher stages of the 1948 football season today sporting winning streaks stretching over three years.

But both teams were unimpressive as they opened their seasons with victories last Saturday. Penn State defeating Bucknell 35-0 and Penn outscoring Dartmouth 26-13.

Keeping pace with the class A powers were the strong eleven fielded by Muhlenberg and Washington and Jefferson. The Mules made it two straight with a 19-0 win over Youngstown while W. and J. opened its '48 campaign with a 40-0 thumping of Bethany.

Pitt Falls
 All-Pennsylvania Deacon Dan Towler was the big offensive gun of the day, scoring 34 points for W. and J.

In other headline games, Pitt fell before the might of Notre Dame 40-0. Villanova rebounded to trounce Duquesne 46-0. Lafayette absorbed a 54-7 lacing from Army and Temple took a 27-7 shellacking from West Virginia.

Penn State and Penn played alert football and took advantage of every break that came along. Neither, however, showed much offensive strength and the two teams will have to improve on scoring punch if they hope to handle the tougher foes ahead.

Other Results
 In other week-end contests involving Pennsylvania colleges, these were the results:

St. Francis 6, Alliance 0; Canisius 19, St. Vincent 0; Boston Univ. 13, Scranton 0; Thiel 7, Hiram 0; Kutztown 37, New Britain (Conn.) 7; Lehigh 26, Case 18; Waynesburg 33, Randolph-Macon 0; Washington (Mo.) 14, Carnegie Tech 6; Ursinus 19, Drexel 7; Gettysburg 26, Albright 6; Westminster 20, Juniata 0; Clarion 20, Edinboro 0; Bloomsburg 6, Lock Haven 0; Mansfield 26, Indiana 0; Shippensburg 19, Millersville 0; Cheyney 22, West Chester Community 7; Grove City 6, Dickinson 6 (tie); East Stroudsburg 48, Panzer 7; Geneva 6, Salem 0; Lincoln 26, Steubenville 0; Allegheny 19, Hamilton 0; Wilkes 14, Hartwick 6; West Liberty 7, California 6; Ithaca 25, Lycoming 0, and Slippery Rock 42, Detroit Tech 13.

SPORTS Roundup
 By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

Boston, Oct. 4 (AP)—Before starting the American league playoff game today, the Red Sox ought to pay their dues and enroll in Newhouse's "Hal's Pals" club. . . . Hal did all right by the Sox yesterday, although it seems that the law of averages was on his side after losing seven out of eight previous duels with Bob Feller. . . . The most significant event of the week-end wasn't the unprecedented American league deadlock or anything that happened in football. It was the "buyers strike" at Belmont. . . . The fans raised a holler of "don't bet" like a football cheer when they heard there would be no show betting on a seven-horse field, topped by Citation. . . . And a lot of them didn't as shown by a drop in the mutual handle from $425,404 on the Champagne to $233,454 on the Gold Cup. . . . That came just a week after the Atlantic City customers rushed onto the track and refused to leave until the management refunded the money bet on a favorite which wouldn't break from the starting gate. . . . Anyway, this late in the season when scratch is getting scarce it seems about time for one on the house.

MONDAY MATINEE
 When Detroit's Fred Hutchinson took sick and couldn't pitch against the Indians Saturday, Manager Steve O'Neill phoned Joe Cronin in Boston to make sure the Red Sox didn't think he was easing up. . . . Middeweight Champ Marcel Cerdan will return to the United States in about a month to begin an exhibition tour. . . . Rocky Graziano turned up unannounced at the Tournament of Champions office the other day bringing a gaudy solid gold wrist watch inscribed: "To Andy Niederreiter, a great promoter." . . . The fight mob thinks it's a wonderful gesture, but nobody knows who told Rocky how to spell Niederreiter.

Talks At Services
 Dr. Howard S. Fox, pastor, introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Paul T. Stonieser, Librarian at the Theological seminary, Lancaster, and a former pastor of Zion church, Chambersburg, who spoke on the meaning of the word "rally" and reminded the school that their work "would succeed because it was not their work but God's work." He, also, preached at the morning service. The new church School Board will meet next Sunday evening after church.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

Whig Meeting: The Whigs of the borough are requested to meet at the house of A. B. Kurtz, on Monday evening next, at early candle-light, to make arrangements for the election on Tuesday.

Married: On Thursday, the 28th ult., by the Rev. J. Wible, Mr. Stephen Weidner to Miss Barbara Guise — both of Tyrone township, Adams county.

On Thursday, the 28th ult., by the Rev. E. V. Gerhart, Mr. James Mickle to Miss Magdalena Hershey — both of Franklin township.

It is certainly the duty of every true Whig not to strike any name on the ticket, but if any one should think himself justifiable in doing so, let his opposition be to that one alone — and let him see that he has all the balance of the Whig ticket. Let no one jeopardize the election of Governor, Canal Commissioners, Congress, etc. because he may not deem it proper to vote for some individual on the Whig ticket! Whigs! Do not let your feelings lead you astray from your principles! There are too many important interests at stake in the election on Tuesday for any one to vote rashly. Reflect calmly upon consequences — and vote only as your better judgment and cool reflection may dictate.

Abolition in Delaware: Petitions for the abolition of slavery are receiving the signatures of all the inhabitants.

SEVENTH-FIVE YEAR AGO
Neither of the National Banks in this place has been affected by the late financial crash. Both the Gettysburg National and the First National Bank have continued to do business, as usual, paying out currency as required, receiving and paying out deposits, and accommodating customers in the ordinary line of discounts.

Sold: Edward McPherson has sold to George W. Schriver the house and lot occupied by the latter at the end of Chambersburg street, known as the Burns house, for $775.

Rev. G. W. Enders and Rev. J. F. Probst, of this place, conducted the services at the installation of Rev. A. Berg as pastor of the German Lutheran church, Chambersburg, on Saturday.

The Singing Convention held in J. B. Miller's grove, near Wierman's mill, on Saturday proved satisfactory, but would have been a greater success had the day been favorable. The ladies and gentlemen of Oak Ridge certainly deserve credit for the taste they displayed in decorating and preparing the ground, in connection with the president, Mr. Miller, for superintending the work.

Ella Bowers served as organist. Solos were given by Ella Ehrenheart and Mrs. Tilman.

There was a good attendance, notwithstanding the inclement weather, between 500 and 600 being on the grounds.

The Homeopathic State Society held its annual meeting in Harrisburg last week. Dr. J. H. Marsden, of this county, took an active part in the proceedings and discussions.

Married: Group—Plank — On the 2d inst., at the Lutheran parsonage, in York Springs, by Rev. S. A. Hedges, Peter F. Group to Miss Anna M. eldest daughter of John E. Plank, Esq., both of this county.

Hammer—Sillik — On the 30th ult., by Rev. M. Bushman, Mr. William A. Hammer, of Butler township, to Miss Sally S. Sillik, of Franklin township.

ADJUSTMENTS

If people would only learn that each day must be a day of adjustment, they would live a life of greater peace and efficiency. The poet Longfellow once wrote that "into each life some rain must fall." What a strange existence this one of ours would be if no rain at all should fall!

Emergencies are what give us training, skill, and resourcefulness. If all things were mapped out, and we always knew just what to expect, we would grow careless, forgetful, and our blunders would overwhelm us. We need the unusual and difficult to keep us on edge, keen, and watchful. To acquire the genius for adjustment to the affairs of life is to gain the way to all success, both material and spiritual.

The important machine always has to have an understanding mechanic handy. Each of us should train himself in the art of adjustment, so as to meet any emergency, and thus give smoothness to each day's task and experience. Continual adjustments wipe out worries that might later appear and give zest to the joy of life.

Rights and wrongs are forever before us, so that our path becomes selective. We must learn to adjust ourselves to circumstances as we go along. Even so great an objective as world peace is a matter of adjustment among all nations. Without it no peace can be expected. All life, to a greater or lesser degree, is a matter of compromise and adjustment.

The most important institution in the world is marriage—yet this calls for constant adjustment if smoothness and happiness are desired. Temperaments are never the same. Ideas often conflict and sometimes snarl at one another. All this calls for the medicine of adjustment, and when it is given—though sometimes it seems a bitter medicine—the cure is the result!

Adjustment is to arrange, and put into order—to create a harmonious situation. Therefore the first step must be willingness to accept the premise, without which there can be nothing but confusion, bitterness and failure. Happiness is adjustment in triumph!

Just Folks

THIS FAR SO SOON?

Just a little while ago
Christmas came and went.
Next, the ground still white with snow,

We were keeping Lent.
Then the tulips, white and red,
Gayly followed on.
Summer-time seemed far ahead.
Now it's almost gone!

Easter and Memorial Day
Slipped so swiftly by.
Next to come and go away:
Four day of July.
Looking forward to a year,
Long we think 'till last.
Labor Day would soon appear.
Even that has passed!

Thus the seasons come and go.
Last—the north winds moan—
Suddenly we wake to know
One more year has flown.
Christmas seemed so far away
When the spring was here.
Soon 'till be Thanksgiving Day
And Christmas drawing near.

Restoring Confidence: An example of the restoration of public confidence occurred in Gettysburg a few weeks ago, in connection with the First National Bank. It became rumored that there was something wrong. Depositors became alarmed, and when the Bank opened in the morning a sharp "run" developed itself. It so happened that Col. John Wolford and Mr. George Throne — both substantial farmers of ample means and stock-holders in the bank — were in town at the time. They promptly stepped forward and gave personal guarantees to all depositors who required it. The consequence was, that in a few hours the "run" had ceased, confidence was restored, and business went on as usual.

TRIAL OF SPIES MAY REVEAL U.S. FILE OF SECRETS

Washington, Oct. 4 (AP) — A top congressional spy-hunter said today many persons suspected of espionage may never come to trial because of the danger of exposing secrets still closely kept.

Discussing this probability, Rep. McDowell (R-Pa.), acting chairman of the house un-American activities committee, told reporters a "fundamental change" in American court process may be necessary.

He said the "maddening" situation shapes up about like this:

1. A "hundred or more" of America's one-time secrets probably have been stolen and handed over to Russia, including information on the atom bomb, jet propulsion and radar.

2. But this country still has many secrets no potential enemy yet has been able to crack. McDowell thinks Russia hasn't got enough information to make an A-bomb.

3. Some spies are believed to be known, or else espionage evidence points strongly toward certain persons. The committee has recommended spy trials for four persons.

May Reveal Secrets

4. But to bring all potential spy cases into open court might — in the normal flow of evidence — force into the open many of the well-kept secrets.

McDowell gave as an illustration the situation he said the army found itself in during the war. The government then might easily have put its hands on suspected spies, but to have brought them into court might have required presentation of evidence that America was making atom bombs — a secret fiercely guarded from Germany and Japan.

"It then was the decision of the army, when it discovered it had disloyal people, to let them go free," McDowell said.

The Pennsylvania did not say specifically what changes he thinks may be necessary to deal with espionage cases. He said he wants to protect the fairness of American courts.

McDowell insisted, however, that in his opinion the courts can safely handle the trials of the four persons the committee has said should be tried. They include two American atomic scientists, the former wife of one of them and a Communist party organizer.

TEN KILLED IN PENNSYLVANIA

(By The Associated Press)

A 76-year-old physician was killed and seven other persons injured Sunday in a two-car collision near Lewisburg—one of a series of accidents that brought death to at least 10 persons in Pennsylvania over the week-end. The physician killed in the crash six miles north of Lewisburg was identified as Dr. Wayne S. Regar, of Ephrata.

Mrs. Catherine Morgan, 20-year-old mother of two, was injured fatally Sunday when police said she fell from an automobile being driven by her husband, John, near their home at Tamaqua, Stanley A. Leith, 21-year-old bricklayer, of Bethlehem, was killed early Sunday as his car left the highway near Bethlehem and struck a pole.

Elmer Green, Jr., 20, of Reading, died in St. Joseph's hospital, Reading, Sunday of injuries sustained Saturday night when his car left the road near Stonersville and struck a tree. Seventeen-year-old Leo Studeny fell dead in front of his home at Brookline while passing a football with a neighborhood friend on Saturday. He said "Gee, I feel bad" and slumped to the ground. Cause of death was undetermined.

Luther W. Hartman, 31-year-old father of five children, burned to death in a fire that destroyed his two-room cabin five miles from Turbotville Saturday night.

FRENCH COAL STRIKE OPENS

Douai, France, Oct. 4 (AP)—A strike of some 335,000 French coal miners that could paralyze the nation's industry if prolonged began quietly today.

At two mines near here groups of pickets from the Communist-dominated general confederation of labor (CGT) gathered at mine entrances. Neither police nor soldiers were in evidence.

The walkout threatened to cripple coal fields in the north of France and in the Pas De Calais area.

The strike was called for an "unlimited duration" by the Communist-led federation of miners. The non-Communist workers force, claiming 120,000 members, said it would join the strike "effectively but not actively." The non-Communist French Confederation of Christian Workers agreed to strike for only 48 hours.

The miners' demands have not been clearly defined. In general, the Communists are protesting the high cost of living, the unfavorable relation between wages and prices and a government decision to cut down the number of employees in the nationalized mining industry by eight per cent.

Littlestown

Littlestown.—Miss Shirley M. Spangler, a student at Cedar Crest college, Allentown, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theron M. Spangler, North Queen street.

Students at Shippensburg State Teachers' college that spent the week-end with their parents were Miss Dolores Hawk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hawk, East King street, and Herman Boyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Boyd, East King street.

Robert Scholl, a student at Millersville State Teachers' college, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Scholl, South Queen street.

Mr. and Mrs. Laverne Breighner, Lancaster, spent the week-end visiting Mrs. Breighner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Sentz, White Hall, and Mrs. Breighner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Breighner, Walnut street.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Harner, Johnstown, spent the week-end with the latter's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William Dixon, West King street, and also visited with the former's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Harner, East King street, as well as with other relatives in the community. Their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Harner and daughter, Janet, also of Johnstown, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley B. Stover, East King street, and visited with other relatives in the community.

Mrs. Edna Fortney, Prince street, met with an accident by falling at her home on Saturday night. She was admitted to the Warner hospital, Gettysburg, where she is suffering with a fractured pelvis.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Gladfelter, York, were Sunday visitors with the Rev. and Mrs. Frank E. Reynolds, Maple avenue.

Funeral services were conducted at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the J. W. Little and son funeral home for Mrs. Mary Jane Schildt, 72, wife of James Schildt, who died suddenly on Thursday evening in the barn at her home, Littlestown, R. 2. The services were in charge of her pastor, the Rev. John C. Brumbach, pastor of St. Luke's Reformed church, White Hall. Interment was in the Christ Reformed church cemetery, near town. Serving as pallbearers were her two sons-in-law, Oscar Ampacher and LeRoy DeGroft and two grandsons, Roy Reibling and Ralph DeGroft.

Anne Claudine and Angela Claudia McGee, infant twin daughters of Richard and Lois Woods McGee, were baptized on Sunday morning in St. Aloysius Catholic church by the pastor, the Rev. Fr. George A. Lavelle. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Keiser, Irishtown, were the sponsors for Angela Claudine and Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Stonestier, Hanover, were the sponsors for Anne Claudine. The Rev. Fr. Lavelle also baptized James Francis Sanders, infant son of Earl F. and Catherine Welty Sanders on Sunday morning. The sponsors for the child were Daniel S. and Margaret A. Sanders, paternal uncle and aunt.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Haare, Chambersburg, spent the week-end with relatives and friends in town. Thomas Cookson, North Queen street, has returned home after being a patient in the Warner hospital for more than six weeks, suffering from injuries received while at work on the new Towne theater, South Queen street, when an explosion occurred and he was thrown from the top of an oil tank.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hankey, Washington, D. C., spent the week-end with Mrs. Hankey's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Norman I. Hahn and her sister, Helen Jacobs, Lumber street.

Daily mass in St. Aloysius church this week will be celebrated at 8 o'clock. October is the month of the Holy Rosary, and the children of the parochial school will attend mass each morning and recite the rosary. Holy Communion will be distributed outside of mass at 7:05 a.m. There will be a meeting of the young people of the parish on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the parish hall. Saturday night at 7 o'clock, there will be October devotions, consisting of the recitation of the rosary, the litany and the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

GERMAN STEEL SCRAP GOES TO U.S., BRITAIN

Washington, Oct. 4 (AP) — A boost in American and British steel production was in the works today with industries in each of the two nations slated to get 500,000 tons of war-wrecked metal from western Germany.

Under an agreement announced jointly by the two governments yesterday, 225,000 tons of the scrap steel also will be set aside for western European countries.

The joint statement expressed hope that German scrap shipments will total 2,000,000 tons during the next year. The metal is used to make new steel products.

A severe steel shortage exists in most of Europe. In the United States, steel mills have been using about 30,000,000 tons of scrap a year without filling the demand for steel products.

Germans Dismayed

Frankfurt, Germany, Oct. 2 (AP) — Germans expressed dismay today at the news Britain and the United States hope the Anglo-American zone of Germany will give up 2,000,000 tons of scrap steel next year.

"This agreement sounds incredible," said a spokesman for the German Metal Corp. in Frankfurt. "I don't know where these 2,000,000 tons are supposed to be available in the Anglo-American zones. Removal of a large amount of iron scrap from our area would force us to import expensive ore from other countries. To pay for these imports we have to use dollars, which are rare articles."

At Dusseldorf, Dr. K. Adloff, chairman of the German scrap association, said that large scrap exports would diminish Germany's contribution to the European Recovery Program.

GARDEN JOBS FOR OCTOBER

There still is time to remodel the perennial border and to divide and move peonies. Plan for and plant daffodils, hyacinths, tulips and all other hardy spring flowering bulbs.

Plant grapes, raspberries and blackberries this fall.

If you are planning on spring violets, set out plants now. An ideal location for them is a semi-shaded place where they will be spared too much sun.

House plants that were placed outdoors for the summer should be taken indoors.

Cover tops of outdoor chrysanthemums at night with sheets or burlap tied to stakes to protect them from hard frost.

Order roses for next month's delivery. Meantime, prepare the beds now.

As soon as the leaves drop, most deciduous trees, except flowering dogwood, birch, magnolia, tulip tree, sweet gum and a few others, may be moved this month. Keep them well watered until the ground freezes. Stake and tie them thoroughly to prevent loosening of the roots in the soil from heavy winter winds.

Repair and paint garden furniture and garden tools before storing for the winter.

Cleaning up the garden in the fall will pay good dividends in the spring. Gather for the compost all disease-free vegetable plant tops, old flower stalks, fallen leaves and weeds in and around the garden. Burn all plant tops, leaves, twigs and branches that are diseased.

Pull up and clean stakes no longer needed to support tomato vines. These should be bundled according to size and stored away or held for a paint job during the winter.

BOY, 10, SLAIN BY BROTHER, 6

New Castle, Pa., Oct. 4 (AP)—A six-year-old boy fatally wounded his 10-year-old brother in an argument over a comic book, Lawrence County Coroner Charles Allen reported.

Allen said the older boy, George Lee Nail, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Nail of suburban Clifton Platts, died in New Castle hospital yesterday, a few hours after he was shot in the head with a 12-gauge shotgun.

The coroner said the shotgun was fired by the victim's younger brother, Samuel Thomas Nail. Allen said the argument arose from George's wish to trade a comic book with a neighbor boy and Samuel's protest that he had not yet seen the book.

The shooting occurred, Allen said, in the bedroom the boys shared and happened after the boys' father, a steelworker, had ordered George to bed to end the argument.

The coroner quoted the father as saying he kept the shotgun unloaded in his own bedroom and the shells hidden in a vase.

District Attorney Leroy K. Donaldson said Samuel was too hysterical to be questioned. The case, Donaldson said, will be turned over to the juvenile court. No charge will be filed, he said, because the commonwealth of Pennsylvania believes a child of less than seven years incapable of committing a crime.

Storing Celery For Home Use

Celery is one of the most healthful of garden crops for use in the winter diet. When raw vegetables are usually neglected in planning winter meals, celery is easily served and brings a wealth of needed minerals and vitamins to the menu. Every home vegetable grower should know and practice proper storage of celery to guarantee an all-winter supply for family consumption.

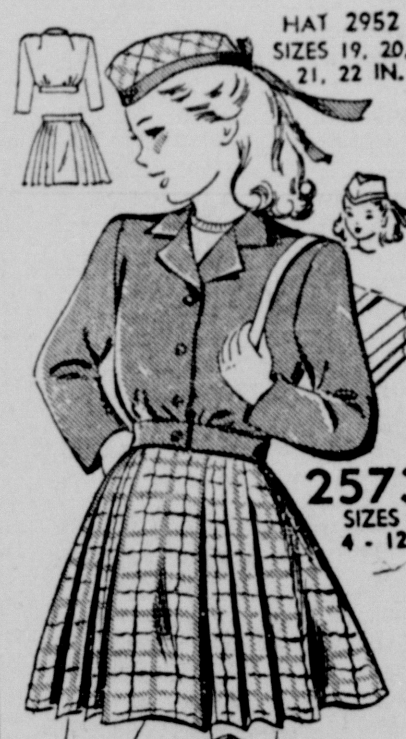

Only the late celery crop permits storing. This should be brought to normal maturity during the cool nights and warm days of late summer and early autumn, free from weeds or other hindrances to proper growth. Any of the widely grown late varieties are suitable, with special emphasis on the Giant Pascal for three sound reasons—First, the variety is unusually vigorous and reaches maximum size; second, Giant Pascal is unusually tender and contains more minerals and vitamins than do most of the white bleached varieties; third, it can be stored over winter by any of the four methods described below with minimum losses.

In the Row—If celery is grown in properly drained locations where it thrives, the late crop may be carried well into winter by ridging the row with soil as cold weather approaches. With the final application of soil the ridge should be sufficiently deep to prevent the stalks from freezing. If the tops of the plants are covered with straw and the last soil heaped up so the straw protrudes through the crest, ample ventilation is thereby provided. Boards in the shape of an inverted V are then placed along the ridge crest to shut out snow and rain.

In Hotbed Pits—Soon before freezing weather arrives, clumps of celery may be taken up by the roots, just as if they were to be transplanted, and set in an abandoned hotbed pit or deep coldframe. Firm soil well around the roots, with the clumps placed close together. Water to settle the soil. Ventilate as needed to avoid excess moisture, but keep the sash covered with dry vegetation to shut out sunlight and cold.

In Cellars—If the cellar is cool, clumps of well matured late celery may be moved to the cellar floor in the same manner as advised for placing them in hotbed pits and coldframes. About 3 to 5 inches of sandy loam should be placed on the floor for this purpose. An occasional sprinkling is necessary to prevent excessive drying. Supplies should not be stored longer than a month or two by this method.

In special Pits—Perhaps the safest way to store celery for home use and late marketing is to prepare a pit 20 to 24 inches deep (not so deep if soil drainage is poor), and 24 to 60

Send 25 cents for each pattern with name, address and style number. State size desired.

CONCESSION BY RUSSIANS ON ATOMIC PLANS

Paris, Oct. 4 (P)—Russia formally proposed Saturday a simultaneous ban on the atom bomb and formation of an international atomic energy control organization.

In a concession to the Western powers, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky proposed that the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission and the Security Council draft two conventions prohibiting atomic weapons and setting up control over atomic energy, to be signed and put into force at the same time.

The Russians previously had demanded that the atomic bomb be banned before the control body was formed.

Russian Proposal

The Russian proposal said: "Having examined the first, the second and the third reports of the Atomic Energy Commission and noting that the activity of the Security Council and that of the Atomic Energy Commission, directed to the implementation of the decision of the General Assembly of January 24, 1946, on the establishment of a commission on the questions raised by the discovery of atomic energy and of the decision of December 14, 1946, on principles governing the general regulation and reduction of armaments, has not up to the present time yielded any positive results.

"Taking into account the utmost importance of the implementation of the mentioned resolutions of the General Assembly of January 24, 1946, and of December 14, 1946.

Recommend Policy

"The General Assembly recommends to the Security Council and to the Atomic Energy Commission:

"1. To continued their activity in the direction defined by the above mentioned resolutions of the General Assembly:

"2. To prepare a draft convention on the establishment of the effective international control over atomic energy with a view that both the convention on the prohibition of atomic weapons and that on the establishment of the international control over atomic energy are to be signed and put into force simultaneously."

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Deardorff have moved into their newly erected home here.

Mr. and Mrs. John Herring and son, Larry, have moved to the cottage they recently purchased from C. H. Wolford. Mr. Wolford held sale of his personal property at the cottage on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. I. O. Biesecker are making plans for a new dwelling at this place.

Mrs. C. U. Spence, who had been quite ill is able to be around her home.

Mrs. H. H. Spence has had the cast removed from her right arm which she fractured in a fall at her home here sometime ago. Mrs. Spence, who sustained other injuries from the fall after which she was hospitalized for awhile, is slowly recovering.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Rebert have moved to their newly erected home R. D. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shindeldecker, R. D. 1, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Molkoski, of Seven Stars, are on a vacation trip to Oregon. The group expects to be gone a month and will be guests of the Shindeldecker's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Shindeldecker, in Oregon.

The Orrtanna Canning factory, which opened recently for the processing of apples, is now running on schedule and the South Mountain Cannery, operated by G. M. Musselman and son, has about finished the season's processing of tomatoes.

Convict Thyssen, Ruhr Steel Magnate

Koenigstein, Germany, Oct. 4 (P)—Fritz Thyssen, former Ruhr steel magnate, was found guilty Saturday as a "minor Nazi" by a German denazification court.

The defendant, 73, was ordered to turn 15 per cent of his "available property in Germany" into a restitution fund for victims of Nazi persecution.

Thyssen was accused of having supported Hitler as far back as 1923, allegedly having made substantial contributions to Nazi party funds.

Americans bought more than $21 billions of life insurance during 1947.

Teachers Lauded For Aiding Draft

Harrisburg, Oct. 4 (P)—Lt. Col. Henry M. Gross, state draft director, paid tribute to the state's school teachers for their part in Pennsylvania's recent draft resignation.

In a letter, made public by Dr. Francis B. Haas, state superintendent of public instruction, Gross said:

"Everywhere in the state our board members found hearty cooperation by the school authorities x x x. This assistance on the part of teachers took place during the period when the schools were reorganizing and opening for the fall term, during the hottest of the summer weather, at a time when many were compelled to give up a part of their vacation and with very little time to prepare."

State teachers served during the registration period without pay.

DISCOVER NEW GREEN MINERAL RICH IN URANIUM

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (Associated Press Science Editor)

New York, Oct. 4 (P)—Discovery of a new green mineral rich in uranium, the same kind that makes power and bombs, was announced Saturday at Columbia university.

This green mineral is a relative of the yellow carnotite, from which the United States gets its domestic uranium in the Rockies. Carnotite is one of the two best sources of the atomic stuff.

Whether the green mineral is plentiful is not yet known. The green crystals, small things clinging to mine walls, were found in the Belgian Congo and sent to Columbia for analysis. Like the yellow carnotite, the green stuff is about 60 per cent uranium.

May Be Very Important

If the new mineral proves a good uranium source, the discovery is the most important of its kind since the atomic bomb. More than 100 minerals containing uranium are known, but the stuff has been too difficult of extraction.

Consequently some geologists have published doubts whether the world can have an atomic age very long if it has to rely on the two good sources of uranium known up to World War Two. These are pitchblende and carnotite.

Discovery of the green mineral seems to let Russia into the picture, since it is also closely related to a mineral named tyuyamunite, that was first found in Russian Turkistan. Beyond announcing that they were searching for new sources of uranium, the Russians have said nothing.

TRUMAN, DEWEY PAUSE AT HOMES

(By The Associated Press)

President Truman and Harold L. Ickes, who quit the cabinet explosively two and a half years ago, were booked for a mid-city get-together at the White House today.

With Gov. Thomas E. Dewey also home temporarily from the campaign trail, the Republicans send Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg to a microphone tonight.

The Michigan senator, as chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, is the chief GOP foreign policy spokesman on Capitol Hill.

Tomorrow Dewey has scheduled a conference with John Foster Dulles, another of his foreign affairs advisers who has been attending the United Nations sessions in Paris.

Mr. Truman also planned a series of brush-up conferences on the ticklish international situation, but his (12:30 p. m. EST) meeting with Ickes held top interest with politicians in the capitol. About the only advance word was that the veteran New Deal cabinet officer had asked for the appointment and that the President had agreed.

Walter Hamden inaugurated the new radio series, "Great Scenes from Great Plays," Friday night, over all Mutual stations. The production was Cyrano de Bergerac, a role which Mr. Hamden has played more than 1,000 times on the stage. Photo shows the dramatic climax of the play, "My White Plume!"

The new series is sponsored by the National Council of the Episcopal church with the Episcopal Actors' Guild cooperating. It will be broadcast weekly Friday at 8 p. m., bringing great stars of stage and screen in fine dramatic productions.

JOBLESS PAY IS DENIED MAN

Harrisburg, Oct. 4 (P) — Women and not men can collect jobless benefits when they quit a job to join their spouses, says the State Unemployment Compensation Board of Review.

The ruling was made yesterday in the case of a 61-year old Pittsburgh cabinet maker who quit his job to join his ailing wife in New York. She had gone there for treatment and her physician advised her to remain on the theory the change might benefit her health, the board said.

The board said the courts have ruled that the husband has the legal right to pick the home and "it is the legal duty of the wife to reside with him." It added, therefore, there was "no legal obligation" for the man to join his wife in New York.

"There is," the board continued, "no room for speculation as to whether or not any general public policy favoring the preservation of the home and desirability of having married people live together might furnish sufficient good cause to meet the requirements of the act."

The cabinet maker told the board he has been unable to find work due to his age since residing in New York. His name was not made public.

JAP AGGRESSION FIRST STEP IN WORLD CONFLICT

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

This is the sixteenth anniversary of a memorable day.

It was on October 2, 1932, that the League of Nations commission headed by Britain's Lord Lytton, presented its explosive report on Japanese aggression in Manchuria. Failure to act promptly and adequately on that report sent history off on an unhappy tangent of aggressions that culminated in World War II.

The report was two-folded. It called the turn on Jap aggression, in Washington, and bluntly labeled Manchukuo as a puppet state. The marble palace on the shore of Lake Geneva fairly rocked with the impact of this castigation of a great power. The capitals of the world watched tensely to see how the league would handle the situation. Would sanctions be applied in this first flagrant case of aggression?

There was much talk in Geneva but no clear-cut answer. Japan stuck to her guns—literally—and finally withdrew formally from the league. She did it with indignation on her tongue but with guile in her heart, for she was bent on still further aggression to make herself ruler of a greater East Asia.

Deadly Weapon

Chapter 1

Walter James eased himself into the aisle seat and tried to relax. He couldn't be calm at times like this, he felt his hands on his thighs, pulling the crease of his trousers a little higher. He felt his fingers at his stomach buttoning and unbuttoning his double-breasted coat.

The music from the four-piece band behind the runway was self-consciously languorous, underwritten with heavy drumbeats. Walter James could feel the rhythmic echo in his stomach: it will break any minute, it will break any minute. He was sitting in the darkened house, to see another glimpse of the man he had come to see. The house lights had been out for two minutes now, setting the mood for the Grand Theater's star attraction.

Yes, there was a second seat from the aisle in the last row. A glow of embarrassed red from the weak footlights barely outlined the man's head against the back wall.

The tin voice over the public address system broke the spell of the drumbeat. "And now — what every man in San Diego has been dreaming of — the Grand Theater's own — lovely Shasta Lynn!"

Walter James turned his head back to face the stage. The curtain glided up. He automatically joined the clattering handclaps that greeted the woman standing in the footlight glow. The fat man next to him was whistling shrilly. As the sound cleared his head, Walter James sat up straighter, feeling almost relaxed. This was better. He turned his full attention on the woman.

Shasta Lynn was not overly pretty, he decided, but her nose was thin and straight, and the planes of her face were not irregular. Her bill of sale was apparently her body: curved and flamboyantly sexual, it thrust arrestingly against the sheath of scarlet satin it wore. Her blonde hair was shoulder length.

As the admiration of the audience subsided to a rustle, a microphone slid down from the top of the proscenium to shadow her face. She sang "All of Me" in a convincing voice, in tones that were softer than Walter James had expected. She stood very still as she sang, her hands moving occasionally and slightly against either thigh. She stood very still, knowing that every eye was on her diaphragm as she breathed out the words.

After the last soft "all — of — me" the band at her feet began to accent the drumbeats again. The microphone moved up into the gloom. The red draperies behind her crept silently apart. Now the woman was surrounded by funeral-black, against which her blonde hair and white skin were incandescent. She began to move gracefully and rhythmically about the stage. The throbbing band increased its pace and blue footlights joined the red ones, caressing her weaving body with purple overtones.

Walter James leaned forward in his seat wondering just what was strange about the dance. Shasta Lynn was fascinating but not attractive; her suggestive movements seemed calculated to arouse not lust but some other more bizarre and stealthy surge. Despite the feminine bloom of her body, it intimated at other members of the audience an odd decadence. What's wrong with her? he thought. He looked around near him; their dimlit faces seemed to be registering the normal reactions. I'm getting old, he thought; maybe thirty-eight is too old to appreciate this sort of thing. Then, while Shasta Lynn posed, taking the acclaim of the audience, he dismissed the whole thing as the result of too much imagination.

The curtain dropped.

It rose again as the house lights went on.

The clatter of seats and the subdued thunder of feet on the wooden floor as the audience prepared to leave drowned out the final chorus. There were a few scattered handclaps as Shasta Lynn and a lanky comedian bowed from center stage. The men — college youths, elderly salesmen, sailors — punctuated by an occasional untidy woman, began to seep up the aisle. As the curtain came down to rest for the final time, the four-piece band swung into a march, overridden by the tin voice seductively announcing show times for Sunday. Walter James joined the mob in the last row, the man he had come to San Diego to see.

As he pressed his slender frame almost viciously through the massed bodies, a low scream leaped from the last row. The crowd stopped moving. Walter James pushed out of the aisle and scrambled over the three rows of seats that separated him from his target.

A girl leaned against the back wall of the theater, awkwardly half in, half out of her seat. Her arms were bent double at the elbows as she pressed clenched fists against her shoulders. Her mouth was still open from her scream; her eyes held astonishment rather than terror as they looked down on the man next to her.

The man's head was bent forward as if he were straining to see his lap. But he was not looking at anything. A short knife hilt protruded from his chest.

Chapter 2

"You might as well all sit down," big man took his gaze off them and be around here for a while yet." The audience nervous from 20 minutes of waiting, subsided gradually into the theater seats. The murmur of their voices swelled a little as the big man took his gaze off them and looked at the corpse.

Walter James said to the girl who had screamed, "There's nothing to worry about at all. The police have the situation well in hand." He sat on the back of a seat, one hand soothingly on her shoulder. She looked up at him gratefully. Though a small man, a perfectly proportioned body gave Walter James the appearance of greater size. A slight quirk to his lips hinted a distant excitement behind the irregular lines of his face. His pale blue eyes glinted under mused brown hair.

The big man flicked his eyes briefly at them. He stood towering above the medical examiner who fussed over the body.

"I'll want that knife when you pull it, Doc. And above all, don't screw up the prints again." He moved his tongue contemplatively over his front teeth.

"Got an aspirin for the young lady?" Walter James asked him. "She's on the shaky side."

The big detective moved lightly up to him. "The doc'll take care of her as soon as he's through over there."

The girl shuddered. "I'm all right now," she said out of her white face. "May I have a cigarette, please?" She was a youngster—twelve-twelfth dress, nice features, penny-colored hair.

"Sorry," said Walter James and dumped one out of his pack. The girl leaned forward, and he lit it for her with the glowing tip of his own. She huddled back in the seat again, keeping her eyes away from the men working over the body.

"It's not very pretty," the big man agreed sympathetically. "How old are you, miss?"

"Nineteen."

"Still going to school?"

"Uh-huh. I got to State."

The big man raised his eyebrows. "Name?"

"Laura Kevin Gilbert," the girl said reluctantly.

Walter James said quickly, "Wait a while, won't you? The kid's shaky. She was parked next to the body when the lights went up."

The big man shifted his gaze. "Who are you?"

"My name is James—Walter James." He puffed smoke at the big man's gray waistline.

"Stick around," the big man advised. He spun on his heel and started down the aisle toward the stage. "Jim, I want you," he snapped over his shoulder.

An elderly plain-clothes man detached himself from the cluster around the body and followed the big man down the aisle. The front few rows of the theater were filled almost solid with silent people; toward the rear where the body had been found only a few hardy souls remained. The big man unbuttoned his coat and leaned back against the runway.

"Folks, I'm Lieutenant Clapp from the police department." He scanned them lightly, almost disinterestedly. "I don't want to detain any of you any longer than I have to so we'll try to get this over as fast as possible. A little Filipino has been killed back in the last row, probably while the show was on. It looks like murder. If any of you know anything about it, I'd appreciate you telling us right now, in the interests of law and order."

He paused and glanced around expectantly. No one stirred.

"Don't hesitate to speak up if you noticed anything out of order in the last row, around the area where the body is." He paused again. Midway back in the theater, a hand was raised timidly. "Yes?"

A young sailor stood up. "My name's Bill Davis," he said uncertainly.

Clapp nodded encouragingly. "You saw something, did you?"

The youth twisted his head embarrassedly. "I—I think so—uh—Lieutenant."

"What was it?" Clapp asked him patiently. The sailor held a short whispered conference with the uniformed man next to him. He raised his head and spoke rapidly.

"Randy says he thinks so, too, so I guess I did see it. I was sitting across the aisle from the guy—" he indicated the body with a jerk of his blond head. "—and I'm pretty sure that somebody was moving around there just about when the—uh—the lights went out."

Clapp ran a heavy hand over his tanned face. "What kind of moving?"

The sailor frowned. "I—I'm not sure, Lieutenant. I just saw it out of the corner of my eye."

"Thanks a lot, son," Clapp gave him a kindly smile. The sailor sat down and began to whisper animatedly to his companion. The big detective glanced around at the rest of the audience. "Anybody else got anything to add? No? All right—Crane here will take your names and addresses one at a time. If you know anything, tell him. If you don't, just give Crane your name, address, occupation and how he can get in touch with you by phone—if we have to. Then you can go home to bed and you probably won't hear from us again. Thanks for your cooperation. All yours, Jim."

"Keep her there," advised Clapp. "I'll be back there right away."

The fat man let out his breath in a shuddering sigh and turned away. Clapp touched him lightly on the shoulder. "One other thing, Greiss. Your man on the door—Johnny—tells me that not one of the audience left the theater before we got here. The manager nodded. "That puzzles me. Why did a good three hundred people to stick around to chin with the police. Got an answer?"

"Well," said Greiss, "that officer that's always around this block—Murdock—he was here five minutes after the girl screamed."

Clapp went after his point relentlessly. "But did you send after Murdock? Who called the police station? Who held this crowd in here till Murdock got here and I got here? Did you?"

"Well, Lieutenant, I was going to do all those things—I wanted to co-operate as much as I could. But that man of yours was in the house, so he took charge. He didn't have any trouble at all with the tough guys—after all, he had a gun."

Clapp asked slowly, "What man of mine?"

"Why, that gentleman up there," Greiss pointed. Clapp's eyes followed the fat finger up to the back of the house and a new spark kindled in them. He crossed through the seats of the center section and marched up the left aisle toward Walter James.

Chapter 3

Clapp moved up toward the body again. "Where's that manager—Greiss?" he called. A shiny-headed man poked between the curtains and came out on the stage.

"I'm just up here, talking to my people," he explained anxiously.

"Let's you come down here and talk to me," rumbled Clapp.

"Sure, Chief. Anything I can do to help."

Clapp looked down at the body. Once it had been a male, lineage Filipino, age twenty-five to forty, about five-foot tall, approximately a hundred pounds in weight, complexion dark, lots of long black hair greased back, hands a little withered and knobby on the backs, large solid gold ring on the left one, expensive wristwatch with a gold strap, purple silk sport shirt with plastic buttons, black wool trousers with a hard finish and a neat crease, black patent leather shoes about size six or smaller.

"Too bad," babbled Greiss. "An event like this gives an honest legit house a bad name."

"In a minute," Clapp brushed him off. "What's the word, Doc?"

Dr. Stein, the medical examiner, was a young man but he looked at Clapp with old eyes.

"Died instantly. Heart was punctured by the knife blade. It went in right below the sternum up to the hilt. He took about three inches. From the size of him, the blade probably went clear through his heart. The wound points to his left, about fifteen degrees. Anything else?"

"How long?" asked Clapp.

"Within the hour. Very little bleeding, hardly got him dirty. He's just beginning coagulation now."

Clapp turned to Greiss. "Greiss, 'You know the body here?'"

"Yes—he works here. Or, anyway, he worked here. See, Chief, we want to help you all we can."

"Lieutenant," said Clapp succinctly. "Sit down, Greiss, you may save us trouble after all. So he worked here? What did he do?"

"He took tickets as our patrons came in. His name was Fernando Soles—been with us since we opened in '43."

"Did Soles have any particular enemies?" asked Clapp.

Greiss waved his hands. "No. Ferdy was a good, clean boy—had nothing but friends. Everybody liked Ferdy—he'd do anything for you. Always a big smile." He showed Clapp how the dead man used to smile.

"If Soles was a ticket taker," mused Clapp, "why wasn't he out taking tickets? What was he doing sitting in the audience?"

The manager moved his plump hands out horizontally. "Oh, that! Nothing suspicious about that, Lieutenant. Ferdy was nuts about the way Miss Lynn danced—Miss Lynn, she's my big attraction here. So we used to humor Ferdy—Johnny would take over the ticket box during Miss Lynn's number so Ferdy could come in and watch. No harm in that."

"Felix!" called Clapp. A stocky plain-clothes man hurried in from the lobby; he was dapper despite his fat. "Start checking the cast and employees. The body worked here as a ticket taker, named Fernando Soles, been here since '43. I want to talk to the cast in a few minutes. Particularly to a babe named Miss Lynn. Don't scare them—just have them sit tight." Felix nodded and started toward the stage. "So," said Clapp, "Soles was nuts about Miss Lynn."

"No, Lieutenant!" protested Greiss. He palmed the sweat off his bald head. "You got me all wrong! Ferdy just liked to watch Miss Lynn dance. She's a high-type girl, very high-toned. Ferdy just admired her—he liked to run errands for her—you know, get cigarettes or something if she ran out."

"This Lynn woman got any jealous boy friends?"

"No."

"No, what?" pursued Clapp. "She got a husband, she living with anyone, who does she run around with?"

"She doesn't go out with anybody."

Clapp's lip curled. "Cut it, Greiss, I'm old enough to know."

Greiss took hold of Clapp's arm. "Believe me, Lieutenant, you got it all wrong. Miss Lynn is a hightype girl. There is nothing wrong there. I have never seen her do anything out of the way. The pitch of his voice rose unevenly.

Clapp looked at him steadily. A spark kindled in the big man's eyes. He rose and the pudgy manager rose with him. "Okay, okay," the detective said, "but I think I'll have a little heart to heart talk with Miss Lynn, just the same."

Greiss put his hands together as if preparatory to wringing them. "I can tell you anything you want to know, Lieutenant. There's no use wasting your time with my cast—He felt the big man's eyes on him quizzically and he stopped abruptly. "She's backstage," he said uncertainly.

Chapter 4

Clapp sat down ponderously by the pair. "Well, Mr. James," he said, "you seem to have distinguished yourself in our behalf tonight."

"It seemed the thing to do," the smaller man replied. "Do I get a merit badge?" He lit more cigarettes for the redhead and himself. Clapp pulled out a pipe and began preparing it for use.

"Naturally," he considered. "I should be very grateful. However, being of a suspicious nature, I'm gonna reserve our city's thanks for a while. What's your angle, Mr. James?"

"No angle, Mr. Clapp," Walter James said, an amused glint in his blue eyes. "I acted within my rights as a citizen."

"Police background?"

"Taught functional law three years at the Cincinnati police school."

Clapp waved at the remaining members of the audience by the runway, lined up to talk to the elderly detective. "You pull a gun on those other citizens?"

"No."

"You got a gun?"

"Of course."

"The brethren down there see it?"

"My coat was unbuttoned. Maybe some of them saw it."

"Suppose I see it." Clapp held out a big hand. From far under his left lapel, Walter James extracted a pistol and handed it to him. It was a .38 on a .32 frame. The shells showed shiny brass caps in every chamber.

"Got a license for this?"

"Not here—Atlanta."

"Oh," Clapp's heavy eyebrows pushed up. "A stranger in town. You like our little city?"

Walter James's eyes flicked toward the second seat, last row, center section. His lower lip twitched. "You put on this show every Saturday night?"

Around the edge of his tight collar, Clapp flushed. "How long you been here?"

"Thursday morning, nine o'clock. Serra Apartments, 3B, Talbot 1121. How about a receipt for that gun?"

With a quick smile, Clapp began writing it out.

"Mr. James," asked Clapp, "where did you sit?"

Walter James nodded his head down front. "Right where that black-shirt of yours is cleaning his nails. Toward the other side of the theater, Fourth row aisle seat, inside of the right section. I came in just before Shasta Lynn's number."

"Why?"

"I'm a music lover. Ah'm from Atlanta and Ah just luvve the blues."

The girl giggled. Walter James winked at her. Clapp said, "You should work here. What is your work, by the way, Mr. James?"

"I've retired for awhile."

"From what?"

"Lantz-James Agency, Atlanta."

"What make of cars?"

Walter James extracted a paper from his trim black wallet and handed it to the big man. "That I want back," he remarked. Clapp read it through, running his tongue between his teeth and his heavy upper lip.

"Well, by God," he said, "I should have known." He returned the paper. "Now what are you really doing here?"

"Resting," said Walter James. "I have enough money for quite a while, so I'm resting. You can check it easily with Atlanta."

"You anticipate me, Mr. James," said Clapp.

Interest widened Laura Gilbert's eyes. "Are you a private detective?"

"He was," corrected Clapp. "He's resting now." The girl exchanged smiles with Walter James.

Jim hurried in from the lobby, his face wreathed in smiles. Clapp looked at him questioning. The detective tossed a light-weight green and white sport coat on the empty seat in front of the big man.

"The Filipino?"

Jim nodded.

"What do you have?" Clapp probed. "You're not grinning about a coat."

"No," agreed the older man. "But take a look at this." He handed a small, flat tin box to Clapp. The big man opened it and sat staring at the brownish powder inside. He exchanged glances with Jim.

"Any prints?"

"None except his own. Same for his seat and the arm to his right. Everything on the right-hand seat is pretty badly smudged."

Clapp sighed. "You might know."

"Nothing much in his pockets except a couple pictures of that blonde dancer. No great amount of money, some jewelry and a flashy knife. Looks unused except maybe for picking teeth."

"Anything else?"

Jim picked up the sport coat and ran his fingers into the pockets. "I didn't look in all of the pockets. I got excited when I found that box. Wait a minute, here's something."

He pulled out his hand, a small square of white between his fingers. "What do you make of this, Austin?"

Clapp took the stiff paper gingerly by the edges. "Looks like half a business card to me." He held it up to the light and Walter James looked at it over his shoulder. The printed side read:

IFACE, M.D.
Dietrist
Hours
9-4

Clapp turned the card over. On the back something had been scribbled in pencil. There were three lines of interrupted writing.

I nee
regu

Clapp frowned at it. The man watched him silently. Laura Gilbert said in a small voice, "Does it help any?" The question broke the tension. Clapp put the torn card carefully into his coat pocket and grinned at the serious girl.

"It brings up a lot more questions," he admitted. He turned on Walter James suddenly. "Why did you kill him, Mr. James?"

Chapter 5

"It's a long story," said Walter James. "Us James's — we never forget a grudge."

"Like me," said Clapp. He grimaced thoughtfully. "Oh, well — we'll come back to that question later." He eyed the girl. "You didn't notice anything about whoever it was moved in and out of that aisle seat?"

"I'm not even sure there was anybody. I just think there was."

"You'll help us a lot if you keep thinking, Miss Gilbert."

Laura Gilbert said, "I'm sorry I can't remember, Mr. Clapp. I just wasn't paying any attention. This is my first time in a place like this."

"Why does there have to be somebody in that aisle seat?" Walter James asked quietly.

Clapp said, "You know better than to ask that. The wound indicates that whoever did it would have to be sitting down. Theoretically, the young lady here could have done it with a backhand. If somebody sat to the Filipino's right, that person could have done it with a lunge stroke. The people in front couldn't have done it without being noticed."

"You keep ignoring suicide," said Walter James.

"Not the right circumstances and know the guy from Adam — how about me going home?"

Clapp looked at Felix inquiringly. Felix said, "That's Danny Host. The comic. He's been bellyaching ever since I got here."

Host thrust his thin face at Clapp. "How about it?"

Clapp said, "How come you didn't know Soles, Host? Or didn't you pal around with the hired help?"

Greiss interjected nervously. "I can explain, Lieutenant —" Clapp shut him off by turning his back on the pudgy manager. Host smiled with one corner of his mouth. "What he was going to say is that I'm new around here. Just came in from Denver last week, Lieutenant."

"Why are you in such a hurry to get going?" Clapp asked. "Aside from sleep, I mean."

Host glanced over his shoulder at the crowd of girls near the stage switchboard. He lowered his voice. "You know how it is, Lieutenant — I gotta meet a friend."

Clapp grunted. He turned away from the lanky comedian. "I'm sorry, Mr. Host. Your date'll have to keep." At the sound of his voice, one of the chorus girls bounced out of the crowd.

"Date?" she said shrilly. "What date?"

Host said, "Shut up, Dixie." She faced him, arms akimbo, eyes flashing. "So you did have a date tonight, huh? Giving me the brush-off were you —"

Host kept himself under control with a visible effort. "Will you shut up?" he said, barely moving his lips. "All right, you —" She clawed at Clapp's arm. "He says he didn't know Ferdy, didn't he, Lieutenant? Okay, ask him who he was arguing with this evening before the show."

A slow grin lit the big man's face. He looked at Host with fresh interest. "Well, Host — maybe you'd better go over that story of yours again."

Host looked at the floor. "I did have an argument with Soles tonight, but I still didn't know him very well. He was snooping around the dressing rooms before the show and I'm kinda nervous anyway around that time. There wasn't anything to it."

Clapp nodded his head slowly. "Any witnesses?"

Host gave Dixie another venomous look. "I don't know — I don't think so at the time."

"You have an alibi for the time of the murder?"

"When was that?"

"Somewhere around the last number."

Host said, with only a momentary hesitation, "Sure — sure, I got a alibi. I was backstage waiting for the finale."

A cool voice said from across the stage, "While you're having a heart to heart talk, why don't you tell the Lieutenant everything?"

As one, they turned and looked at Shasta Lynn.

FIRE AT RESORT

Old Orchard Beach, Me., Oct. 4 (AP)—This ocean resort's worst fire in 41 years left an entire block of the amusement district blackened today. A state arson investigator sought the cause of the $250,000 blaze, which gave firemen of five communities a two-hour battle yesterday. Police Chief Leo Farrington said the wind-fanned flames broke out at the rear of "The Old Mill." The boat ride concession, the beach's only roller coaster, User's arcade and two cottages were destroyed.

certs Association, through which local concerts are booked, will attempt to re-arrange some schedules in order to secure the artists selected by the Gettysburg group. As soon as this is completed the artists and the dates of their appearance here will be announced. Mrs. Derck said.

All the concerts will be given in the Majestic theatre on Sunday evenings, after the close of church services.

No single tickets will be available for any of the concerts here. Only members, enrolled during last week's membership campaign will be admitted to the Gettysburg concerts.

Gettysburg members will be permitted to attend concerts in Waynesboro and Chambersburg on their local membership cards. This is a reciprocal agreement between the two neighboring cities and Gettysburg.

participated in the program, none of whom had been prepared previous to the meeting, with Mr. Morse conducting the interviews. The program was wire-recorded. Each of the four men interviewed told the story of his own downfall through the use of intoxicants, and how he recovered his sobriety and a useful place in society because of Alcoholics, Anonymous.

"Social Drinker"

Mr. Morse was introduced by C. E. Blüheimer, president of the church group, following a song service and brief talk on personal evangelism by Dr. Harry F. Baughman, Lutheran Theological seminary, and acting pastor of the church. Anonymous names were used for each of the four men who came here from York to participate in the program and tell their stories.

"I was an alcoholic for 15 years," Steve said. "I didn't know I was an alcoholic. In the beginning, drinking seemed the thing to do during prohibition. I was a social drinker over week-ends. Then it was during the week, and then all the time. I served in the Marine corps. Then I was a steam shovel operator. I had to get

Penna Alumni To Dine Tonight In D.C.

Washington, Oct. 4 (AP)—Alumni of more than 40 Pennsylvania colleges and universities will join forces here tonight for the third annual observance of "Pennsylvania Week."

Presidents of some 20 of the institutions are expected to attend the all-Pennsylvania college alumni dinner to be held at 7 p. m. (EST) at the Statler hotel. They will be greeted by officials of the various Pennsylvania alumni clubs in Washington.

Speakers scheduled at the dinner include Dr. Herbert L. Spencer, president of Bucknell university and Dr. Francis B. Haas, the state's superintendent of public instruction.

Miss M. Vashl Burr, a Pennsylvania deputy attorney general, is general dinner chairman. Vice chairman is Dr. D. Carl Abernethy, alumnus of Pennsylvania State college; and Carl Mack of Lafayette college is secretary-treasurer. Martin T. Wiegand, president of the Pennsylvania club of Washington, is reception committee chairman.

Girl Scouts

healthy attitude toward life and a responsible useful member of her home, her church and society. The girl scout program is planned for girls from seven to 18. It includes fun and good times with their own friends, a wide range of interesting and useful activities, opportunities for service, and an ethical code they can apply to anything they do."

29 Troops Now

Gettysburg, with the largest girl scout population in the county, will be giving less than one-half of the more than $6,000 needed to keep the county Girl Scout organization operating during the forthcoming year.

With the speed with which the organization is developing throughout the county, the organization is finding it difficult to budget itself. Actually the county Girl Scout set-up is, in its present form, only about half a year old. For many years the county has had Girl Scouting in the form of lone scout troops. About six years ago there were five troops in the county and by Tuesday evening there will probably be 30 troops. It is possible that within a few weeks the number will be 31 or 32—the movement is getting along that rapidly.

The 30 figure by Tuesday night is probably assured, for at that time a meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. David Baker, 102 West Middle street, for the formation of a new Senior Scout troop and it is being set up because of the interest shown by a number of girls in forming such a troop. Another Brownie troop in Gettysburg is also in the process of being formed.

131 Girl Scouts Here

About 500 girls, 131 of them in Gettysburg, are currently members of the organization in the county, and well over 100 adults hold various committee and leadership posts in the scout troops. If the organization advances as fast in the future as it has within the past few years the number of scouts should within a few years total over 1,000.

Only during the past half year has the county had an overall organization with an executive director. Since the end of World War II, the county Girl Scout movement has increased rapidly, with at first a county wide leaders club providing an over-all leadership. Then the county wide organization was set up and this year the county office was opened with Miss Tupper in charge.

Of the total $4,342.74 income last year the Girl Scouts received $3,798.49 from a financial drive. Registrations brought in $139.75 and troop assessments totaled $285. A donation of $96 was given by the county fruit growers.

County Drive Too

To meet the budget prepared for this year, the organization will have to carry on a county-wide drive to meet the remainder of the $6,170 needed after the group has received its $2,700 from Gettysburg.

The budgeted outlay for the year includes $2,600 for the executive director, $1,040 for an office secretary, $200 for transportation, $15 for organization, $125 for conferences and conventions, $50 for bulletins, $135 for programs; $125 for office supplies, $50 for postage, $200 for rent of headquarters, $100 for insurance, $100 for telephone service, $125 for office equipment, $20 for the audit and $600 registration fees.

Members of the Girl Scout council include Mrs. C. Harold Johnson, president; Mrs. J. Walter Coleman, first vice president; Mrs. Raymond Hale, Jr., second vice president; Mrs. Charles Fellman, recording secretary; Mrs. Richard C. Lighter, corresponding secretary; Mrs. P. J. McGlynn, treasurer; Mrs. Harvey Raffensperger, registrar; Mrs. Charles Haller, program chairman; Mrs. Mervin Bream, day camps; Mrs. Luther Pittenturf, training; Mrs. LeRoy Bish, organization; nominating committee chairman, Mrs. George F. Eberhart; Juliette Low chairman, Mrs. Wilbur Bankert.

PASTOR TRACES INFLUENCE OF PENN ON STATE

Pennsylvania was a "holy experiment," according to a Pennsylvania Week sermon delivered by the Rev. George S. Stoneback, pastor of the Fairfield Mennonite church Sunday, September 26.

"There are a few facts which should be kept in mind about the establishment of Pennsylvania," the pastor said in his talk as a part of the religious observance of Pennsylvania Week.

"From the beginning it was a 'holy experiment.' Like the earliest settlements in New England, it owed its inception basically to the Christian impulse, but carried the Christian principles further toward their logical conclusions," he said.

"It was established by the Society of Friends or the Children of the Light, as they called themselves. There was a widespread conviction that they were in league with strange supernatural powers. One time when George Fox, their founder, was arrested, the fireplace was guarded to prevent his escaping up the chimney. It was fear of this supernatural power that led to the nickname — 'Quakers'; for 'they make people to quake and tremble at their words,' — and their deeds!

God's Inspiration

"The Quakers were in league with supernatural power — they drew on God's reserves of spiritual power. Only thus could they endure the horrible persecution accorded them by the beer, beef, and sex-loving subjects of Charles II (popularized by Miss Winsor). Once in the Tower of London William Penn (whose father was a crone of said naughty Charles) said — 'My prison shall be my grave before I will budge a jot; for I owe my conscience to no mortal man.' Such were the men who established our Commonwealth.

"Its laws and government were based on democratic ideas rooted in Christian teaching. It was in October 1682 that Penn arrived in America. Immediately he established his 'Great Law' — giving every man a legal right to worship God in his own way. Penn was more interested in the internal attitude of the men who governed than in the external

Mrs. Eden Eyster, York-New Salem; memorial service conducted by Mrs. Payl D. Yoder, Codorus, and installation of officers, conducted by Mrs. I. A. Raubenhold, York.

The invocation at the dinner session will be given by the Rev. I. A. Raubenhold, York, president of the Mercersburg synod. The remainder of the program will include a meditation by Miss Applegarth; vocal selections by Reginald Dunkinson and violin selections by Clarence Nuss accompanied by Miss Alice Snyder; the address by Mrs. Shinn and benediction by the Rev. Dr. Fox.

machinery of government. A good governor is more important than a good government. 'Liberty without obedience is confusion,' but 'obedience without liberty is slavery.' The governor must always be obeyed if just; but if unjust he must be criticized and corrected.

Dealings With Indians

"In summarizing his theory of government, Penn likened government to a clock which must be regulated by the people whom it guides. 'Governments rather depend upon men than men upon governments. Let men be good and the government cannot be bad.'

"Here are two striking examples of how Christian principles were applied in dealing with the Indians: 'Although granted the land by Charles in return for debts to his father, Penn paid the Indians and made the famous Shackamaxon Treaty, of which Voltaire said, 'This is the only treaty between these people (Indians) and the Christians that was not ratified by oath and that was never broken.' It is said that while the Quakers were in control of the government no Indian was ever cheated and no White Man was killed by an Indian.

In contrast to the scenes of bloodshed as in New England, where men went to church with musket on shoulder, listen to how things were in Penn's Woods—'And their parents, about that time, going to yearly meeting and leaving the young family at home, the Indians would come every day to see that nothing was amiss among them.' Baby-sitting instead of scalping!

"Long before men thought of federal government, Penn advocated a centralized government for all the American colonies, and even suggested a congress of European nations!

Second To New England
"The Christianity of Pennsylvania, then," writes Dr. Latourette in his 'History of the Expansion of Christianity,' 'had a leading role in the Thirteen Colonies and so of the later United States. Its effect upon the total life of the subsequent nation was not as great as was that of New England. The Quakers lost control in the colony much earlier than did the Puritans in New England. Yet because of the size and fertility of the province and the purpose and programme of Penn (inspired by the latter's Christian faith) the influence of the Christianity of Pennsylvania was second only to that of New England—and may have been greater than any one New England colony. Because of the toleration adopted from the inception of the 'holy experiment,' more different denominations were present than in any other colony and more groups there achieved a denominational organization. In this variety and this denominational organization Pennsylvania was more typical of the coming United States than any other colony or section."

"Why not read a little about the founder of our state this week? Smyth's 'William Penn' from which some facts in this article were gleaned, is in the Adams County Library. For a short chapter — Thomas—'Living Biographies of American Statesmen' is interesting."

Firemen to Meet

Mr. and Mrs. J. Edgar Staines and Mr. and Mrs. George Hoffacker, Baltimore, visited with Mrs. Edwin Elder, Jr., and family at the home of Mrs. Elder's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Wareheim, Park avenue, on Sunday.

The monthly meeting of Alpha Fire company No. 1 will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p. m., in the Littlestown fire hall. Mrs. Gladys Wimer, Westminster, reporter for the Baltimore newspapers, will be guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Littlestown Rotary club, Tuesday at 6:15 p. m., in Schott's banquet hall. Mrs. Wimer will discuss her European trip. The committee in charge of arrangements is the program committee which includes Charles Ritter, chairman, Richard A. Little, Bernard Schott and Prof. Roy D. Knouse.

World Wide Holy Communion service was celebrated in several of the churches of the community. At St. John's Lutheran church, there were services at 8 and 10:15 a. m. The pastor, the Rev. Kenneth D. James, reports that it was the largest fall communion in the history of the church. A special offering was received for the church organ and improvement fund. Public baptism was administered in the church at 2 p. m., when Sara Ellen Greene, infant daughter of Wilson Pershing and Rita (nee Shadle) Greene, was baptized. She was born August 17 in the Warner hospital. Next Sunday a combined Sunday school and church service will be held at 10 a. m., when Rally Day will be observed. There will be a guest speaker.

The Rev. C. K. Gibson, Westminster, was guest minister in the Centenary Methodist church on Sunday morning when World Wide Communion was celebrated. The pastor, the Rev. Grantas E. Hoop-ert, at the Communion service, baptized Thomas Edward Byers, infant son, Kenneth, and Charlotte Byers. A special offering was received for benevolence.

Three Communion services were celebrated in Redeemer's Reformed church on Sunday, at 8:30 and 10:30 a. m., and 2 p. m. The latter service was for semi-invalids. The pastor, the Rev. Frank E. Reynolds announced that this was the largest attended communion on record for Redeemer's church. A basket of flowers was placed on the altar in memory of Hershey G. Stambaugh, by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Stambaugh. The church bulletins were also in memory of Mr. Stambaugh and likewise made possible by his parents.

The service preparatory to Holy Communion was conducted in Christ Reformed church on Sunday morning by the pastor, the Rev. John C.

Brumbach. Holy Communion will be administered next Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The pastor announced that rehearsals of the choir and the men's chorus will be held at 7:30 p. m. instead of 8 p. m. on Thursday nights during the fall and winter months. The rehearsal scheduled for this Thursday is the choir, while the men's chorus will rehearse on Thursday, October 14. Holy Communion will be administered next Sunday at 9 a. m. in St. Luke's Reformed church, White Hall, of which the Rev. Mr. Brumbach is also the pastor.

Mrs. Robert Mickle, and infant daughter, Lois Ann, returned to their home in Fairfield from the Warner hospital on Sunday, Mrs. Mickle is the former Miss Elizabeth Seal, and was proprietor of Seal's store on Lumber street, Littlestown, for many years. The Mickleys moved to Fairfield recently.
